Only 20 cards? I would expect from a big bingo site to offer at least 40 to 50 free cards! :woohoo:

I would agree to you on that. The more that number of the cards provided the more will be the number of the people lurking around to play the game. This would at-least provide us a better chance of winning a good amount of money as well as play for a longer period.

Absolutely, these days there are more number of cards available upon registration as this just increases the chances of winning and provides one more chance of winning some good amount, apart from this there are bonus rounds available that help you win some amount of money that will just sound to be good enough to make for the multiple times of money you spent on playing it.
